

ROBB WILMOT

Robb Wilmot joined the staff of the Federal Judicial Center (FJC) in 2016 after spending 7 years as the head of Technology Education for the Judicial College of the Maryland Judiciary. In his current role with the Education Division of the FJC, he designs and creates educational courses, products, and services used by stakeholders of the FJC. Although Mr. Wilmot specializes in technology related subject matters, he also produces a wide variety of non-technical educational resources for judges, and other members of the Judicial Branch.

Mr. Wilmot has a Bachelor's Degree in Computer Sciences, a Master's degree in Distance Education and eLearning, a second Master's degree in Business Administration, a third Master's degree in Technology Project Management, and is now a Doctoral Student at Johns Hopkins University.

Mr. Wilmot is an avid volunteer. In addition to many community and professional volunteer roles, he also serves as a board member for the Mid Atlantic Association for Court Management, where he also serves as a member of the Professional Development Committee. Mr. Wilmot and his wife spend most of their "spare time" supporting the many activities of their four children who range in age from 10 to 17.
