

DEVELOPING MULTISENSORY STRATEGIES TO ENGAGE ALL AUDIENCES

Monday, August 1

9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Registration Fee: $275.00

This full-day capacity-building workshop will guide participants through a series of experiential activities, each engaging a specific sense or modality. After much discussion and hands-on experience, participants will leave equipped with tools and strategies to implement multi-sensory elements in the galleries and the classroom that will benefit all learners. Workshop participants should come prepared for an intensive but fun day. Handouts will be provided, along with useful reference material in digital format. However, we recommended you bring a notebook, iPad, recorder, sketchbook or whatever your preferred method for making notes, brainstorming, and working through problems as we experiment with various multi-sensory strategies and learn how they might be used with diverse audiences.

PRESENTERS:

- Hannah Goodwin, Manager of Accessibility, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston
- Annie Leist, Special Projects Lead, Art Beyond Sight
- Rebecca McGinnis, Senior Museum Educator, Access and Community Programs, The Metropolitan Museum of Art

Funding for LEAD* is provided by Mike and Julie Connors and FISA Foundation.
